

EC Campus Theater Remodeled

Remodeling of backstage facilities of the El Camino College campus theater has been completed in conjunction with construction of the college's new auditorium.

Several former storage areas in the smaller theater have been converted into theater art classrooms, a scenery construction area, and more simplified and organized storage facilities, according to Harold Wennstrom, dean of the Division of Fine Arts at the college.

Props, scenery, furniture and lighting equipment have been moved to separate areas in a new wing of the music building, adjacent to the campus theater. The theater arts lighting class will also use the lighting storage area as part of its classroom facilities.

Makeup and costume storage space has also been re-organized. Formerly the prop room, the new costume storage room will also be used as a classroom for costuming classes.
